quantitative

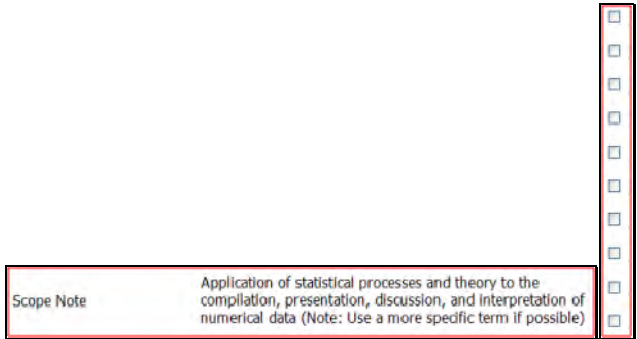

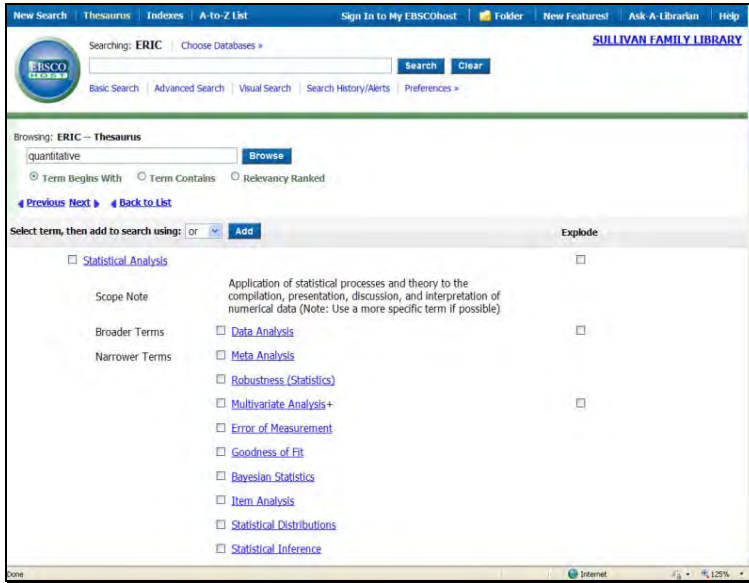

For example, let's look for other terms for Quantitative by typing in the term and clicking Browse.
Slide 8

The screenshot shows the ERIC Thesaurus interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'New Search', 'Thesaurus', 'Indexes', and 'A to Z List'. The search bar contains the term 'ERIC' and a 'Search' button. Below the search bar, there are options for 'Basic Search', 'Advanced Search', 'Visual Search', 'Search History/Alerts', and 'Preferences'. The main content area shows the search results for 'quantitative'. It includes a 'Browse' button, radio buttons for 'Term Begins With', 'Term Contains', and 'Relevancy Ranked', and a 'Page: Previous | Next' link. Below this, there is a section for 'Select term, then add to search using:' with a dropdown menu set to 'or' and an 'Add' button. A note states: '(Click term to display details.) The term quantitative would appear here had there been an exact match'. The results list several terms with their corresponding established headings: 'Quantitative Aptitude Use Mathematical Aptitude', 'Quantitative Literacy Use Numeracy', 'Quantitative Research (Statistics) Use Statistical Analysis', 'Quantitative Tests (Mathematics) (1980-1985) Use Mathematics Tests', 'Quantum Mechanics', 'Quarter System', 'Quasiexperimental Design', 'Quechua (2004) Use American Indian Languages', 'Question Answer Interviews (1966-1980) Use Interviews', 'Questioning Techniques', and 'Questionnaires'.

Quantitative Research (Statistics) Use Statistical Analysis The term quantitative would appear here had there been an exact match

We can see quantitative does not have its own heading in the Thesaurus, however, there are a few phrases that lead us to established headings. For example, we should use Statistical Analysis for the phrase Quantitative Research.

Slide 9

After clicking on Statistical Analysis, the entry provides a Scope Note about how the term or phrase is used within the database, and a list of broader and narrower terms. These terms can be added to your search by checking the box and clicking Add.
